Climb for Conservation (ClimbforConservation.org) is a 501(c)(3) public charity whose mission is simple: we climb mountains around the world for a conservation cause. We believe in maintaining the health of the natural world and we focus our efforts on raising awareness and funds for land, water and wildlife conservation. There is no doubt that climate change, land loss, pollution, and other forces are threatening our planet with unprecedented loss of wildlife and wild places.

Our kick-off climb is Mt. Kilimanjaro and proceeds will be used to help protect the (endangered African Black Rhino through donations to the Mkomazi Rhino Sanctuary in Tanzania. Our gorgeous green girls climbing Kilimanjaro include Actress Mariel Hemingway; NASCAR driver and environmental Activist Leilani Munter; Green Girl Minute TV Host and AREDAY VP Ginna Kelly; Snow and Ice Scientist Julienne Stroeve; and the Green Girl Next Door Vanessa Meier. Our Climb for Conservation team will be shooting video to be aired on the Outside Television network.
